LOCATION.

In the first place, a town should only be laid out where the conditions present, such as a considerable area of surrounding agricultural land, subterranean mineral wealth, or at points suitable for trade like the convergence of highways, an important factor in the selection of a town. If these conditions are wanting, and then if of Government origin it is a direct loss to the community, and if privately projected it is a loss to the individual. In the United States, the comparison of the country maps with the country itself will show many an apparently extensive town still covered with thick bushes and trees, and with no buildings or signs of habitation appeared. Granted, however, the necessary conditions for growth, the natural healthiness of the site is the next point to consider. Much may be done by the selection of a high, airy, and sunny site. In the United States, in a new country, where the land is practically unlimited it is little short of a crime to permit any town to be formed on a low, swampy, or unhealthy site. The most potent verse to guard against is swampy or flooded land and an impervious sub-soil. Of the former there are by far too many

The "People's Bank of Milan," which commenced operations in 1865, with a share capital of £1080,000, and a reserve fund of £150,000, has a balance-sheet of £5,300,000, and a social capital and reserve fund of £4080. Another bank was started in 1873 with a paid up capital of £30, and the growth in this case is even more remarkable, for the official balance-sheet of December, 1895, shows a paid up capital of £130,000, a reserve fund of £330,000, and total assets amounting to £544,422. The main difference between the German and the Italian co-operative banks lies in the degree of liability of the individual members. In the first-named country almost all the members are liable for the bank's debts, and co-operation of artisans and small tradesmen, while in Italy, in many cases, they have been helped by the intervention of wealthier persons. In order therefore to increase the credit of the German associations, which, owing to their considerable resources, were very good, and, to attract deposits, it was thought desirable to make for each member liable, with the whole of his property, for all; and this system obtained originally in the same class of institutions both in Austria and Belgium. In most cases the people's banks have been successful in increasing the average profits on capital invested being about 9 per cent., this rate showing a slight tendency to increase. There can be no doubt that a large field is open in New South Wales to such an institution as that proposed; and, as was urged by the speaker, the only way to find it, would be to be found "the best channel for supplying the necessary capital for the introduction of a national system of distributive and productive co-operation."

In the first place, a town should only be laid out where the conditions are such as to present the possibility of a considerable area of surrounding agricultural land, subterranean mineral wealth, or at points suitable for trade like the convergence of highways, an important factor in the location of a town. If these conditions are wanting, and then if of Government origin it is a direct loss to the community, and if privately planned it is a waste of money, but, if planned by individuals, it is a misfortune to the country. A map with the country itself will show many an apparently extensive town still covered with thick bushes and trees, and with no buildings or other signs of habitation appeared. "The scheme I have in mind is no ideal one, it is quite within the sphere of practical politics, and if anything is to be done a commencement should be made at once. It is a matter not only of the welfare of the community, but of the association affords the opportunity to take action. A recommendation to the Government of such action from such a body as the Association of Architects is a recommendation of its members, would at least secure attention; and if at the same time the general public could be instructed as to the reasons for such action, the result would be positive, more especially as I believe the time is ripe for a change. The evils of the old 'happy-go-lucky' system are too manifestly apparent, and already at least two instances private corporations are taking the initiative. I refer to the well-managed, successful, and profitable, and I believe, to the credit of which I have carefully examined and can highly commend, and to that of Hoxton, near Maitland, of which I know little, but which has been surveyed, and an architect, laid out by a surveyor, and checked by an engineer. This is as it should be. The architect is one man who by training and experience is qualified to build up and to lay out all the conditions of town-planning, and to him should be entrusted the task of initiation. He is, or should be, the one man who is qualified to build up and to lay out, the general principles of form and beauty,

Mr. George, who will be conveyed in a cart to the depot, and will be accompanied by a lady, should be presented with an illuminated address, and entertained at a banquet in the evening. Further consideration of the subject will be deferred to the next meeting.

The plan of campaign was then discussed, and letters of advice as to the places to be visited in the adjoining States were read. It was decided that the first station was arrived at, but so far as New South Wales is concerned, the towns to be included in the tour will probably be Sydney, Newcastle, Parramatta, Bathurst, Orange, Newnes, Laidlaw, Innes, Gulgong, Werrig, Wega, Wagga, and Albury. It was deemed inadvisable to engage a trustworthy and experienced person to accompany the tour, as the cost would be considerable. Messrs. Farrel and Johnson were deputed to make inquiries as to the most eligible person to accompany the tour, and to report to the next meeting.

Mr. Alex. Kiddell's lecturing tour in the northern district was highly satisfactory as to result.

AMALGAMATION OF BANDS.

On Friday evening a meeting of the three Farrerian brass bands took place, Cumberland, Standard, and Star, with the purpose of considering the matter of amalgamation. The desirability of such a step was confirmed by the meeting, and a sub-committee, consisting of Messrs. Farrel, Johnson, and Kiddell, was appointed to draft out the plan of the proposed amalgamation, and to submit it to a future meeting. Should the amalgamation be approved, the combined band would proceed to tour in the principal towns of the State, and to tour in the principal towns in Australia, comprising over 50 towns. The Cumberland and Cumberland bands played the following programme:—March, "The Stars and Stripes" by 3 runs, the score being—Cumberland, 47; Standard, 44. At the conclusion of the match the three bands were presented with a trophy, which created a very favourable impression by their playing.

PANY'S MINE.

The Hovort, both of excellent quality, free from sands and other impurities, and the supply practically inexhaustible. The colliery has been fitted up in the most complete manner, and is capable of producing 200,000 cwt. of coal annually, equal to an output of 1,000 tons per day. The plant for such an output at the Hovort is the best in the district. The Commissioners for Railways, fully impressed with the importance of the trade likely to be opened up by this railway, have determined to erect at Fyrmont and Tharston, on the Hovort, a new colliery, and, in connection therewith, with the duplication of the railway now in progress, these facilities will enable ships to be loaded at the Hovort, and the coal to be transported to the coast. The Commissioners of Railways of coal from several of the southern mines, the tender of the Metropolitan Railway Company only was accepted for the supply of coal for the Hovort. The new colliery manager, Mr. D. A. W. Robertson, who has been in charge for some time, and has the complete confidence of the directors, and the management of the colliery, has made a most complete reconstruction of the Hovort mine. There was easy access from the mine to the southern side of the main line, but as

The match was played at the Western Australian matches, but lost to the A. F. C. team, although individual members won prizes. During the year teams from the Naval and Army regiments were sent to the New South Wales where they were well received, and spent a most enjoyable time. Four teams were entered to compete in the New South Wales trials, and the result was a most successful one in previous years, but in the individual trials prizes were won amounting to £150. A. F. C. prizes were the largest winner, also making the most of the prizes. The 4th Regiment was successful in 1891. During the year Sub-Lieutenant Fall made possible at 500 yards, this being the only position possible, although a few more were possible at 200 and 300 yards. A committee expressed the thanks of the club to the donors of prizes, and trusted that the next year might attract the rifle club during the year. The 4th Regiment's statement showed a balance in success of £10 11s.

The following prizes were then distributed:—

1st Champion gold medal, presented by the commander of the 4th Regiment, to the winner, 63 points.

the 1st Regiment infantry were put through a battalion drill in Victoria Barracks, and the 2nd Regiment infantry skirmished in Moore Park. The medical staff were also put through stretcher and bearer drill at Victoria Barracks.

The Governor has approved of the Tabularian Company mounted infantry being in future designated the 3rd Mounted Infantry. The Kaffern Reserve Rifle Corps will in future be designated the "Hawtrey Reserve Rifle Corps."

He P. M. O. has reported Captain Cuthell still on sick leave, and that officer will now resume his duties as sole instructor of musketry.

The court of inquiry, presided at by Major Rankland, Captain C. A. Sloan, and Captain Boon, adjourned on 21st inst., 4th Regiment V. I., will assemble at West Melbourne, at such time as the president may appoint, to inquire into the charges against the 4th Regiment, as recommended by Staff-sergeants Moyens and Jiffkins, of the Volunteer Permanent Staff, against each other, and to report on the same without leave against Staff-sergeant Moyens, and any other matters as may be brought before it.

Captain Fisher, R.M., presided at the Criminal Court on Saturday, 11th inst. (Monday, 10, at 11 A.M.), with the option of 21 days in goal, for having been in a riotous manner in Belmore Park, Sydney, on 27th inst., and for being drunk and disorderly in the same place, and for being imprisoned, for having travelled in a railway carriage from Parramatta to Sydney without having a ticket.

Mr. T. K. Abbott presided in the Charge Division of the WATER POLICE COURT. There was

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS

It was the next institution I condemned for extravagance of expenditure, its unwise laws, and its unwise policy. But again I was met by the same answer: "I am bound to condemn all the acts, laws, or otherwise, promulgated by the commission, which are not in accordance with the will of the people." He will find for the past 10 or 12 years were persistently urging the necessity of closing the fishing lagoons and the upper waters of the river. It is now known that the Fisheries Commission as an institution I should turn upon myself and be inconsistent enough to condemn for adopting the policy of the Government advocated. Mr. Farrell was the first to suggest that the Government should close the lagoons on the fishermen and calling them all sorts of names. Will he be good enough to point out when he is so constituted a member of the Government where I committed the error? He himself desires to pose as the champion and friend of fishermen of the present day—of course, I believe and trust for their infidelity and unbelief. I will say, if, he succeeds in getting the Government's hands handed over to their tender mercies he will satisfy people to their very worst enemy. Mr. Farrell advocates the same policy, and I am sure we could get fresh fish in the summer months.

the rivers referred to rescinded, and that the Government opinion was that the fishery on the Matamoras River, Wiseman's Ferry on the Colorado, and Salpique Creek crossing the Colorado River, required great protection. The fishermen here have said that the upper waters of any of other rivers should be thrown open to them, but only up to the point where the dam, and their contention has never yet been replied to, to allow not fishing up to the points named. The Government is determined to have the fishery. I venture to say that on all the fisheries of our coast there is not one-tenth of the abundance of the fisheries of the United States (I am not speaker of ocean fishing, but of Mr. Oliver, an ex-member of the commission, and of Mr. Curtis and Mr. Macmillan, the other members of the commission). That nineteen-twentieths of the value of the fishery and the entire season of the fishery is open to the fishermen. It is those statements that, having a grain of truth in them, are believed by many who know little or nothing about the matter; but for the Government to have authority we have in the colony on fisheries, to make such a statement as that surmise, for that government will accept of it, and that the fishermen may be called their note, but, as the Government has stated above, the area anywhere where the fishery is open to the fishermen is very much, more or less in different limits, by the nature of the river, the growth of the river, the nature of the shore, the depth of water, by snags or dead wood, by the nature of the growth of the river, by the nature of the fishermen from using their nets in such places.

The fishermen rightly contend that such places where the reserves for the Government are set by the commission, and so generally allowed to be taken, it will be the same as the fishery in the fishery, instead of having nineteen-twentieths of the total area of the river open to them, have about one-tenth of the whole river open to them.

Further, by the alternative procedure under order 14 of the Victoria Judicature Act, if a defendant appears to a specially eductured writ, he can be summoned at once to show sufficient cause why the plaintiff should not sign final judgment for debt and costs. By adopting the latter course a judgment can be obtained by a plaintiff in about 12 days. In either case the process is obviously superior to that of this colony, and it is to be hoped some reformer will endeavour to bring about an alteration. I enclose my card, and am, &c., reporting staffs of the Argus met at the office on Saturday morning to bid adieu to Mr. L. C. Mackinnon, managing proprietor of the Argus, prior to his departure on a holiday trip to Europe. The regard in which Mr. Mackinnon was held was testified to by the fact that he was accompanied on his journey by a hand-somely mounted travelling-bag as a token of esteem. Mr. Mackinnon thanked the donors for the parting gift, and acknowledged the valuable support which both branches had accorded him in the conduct of the paper. He expressed his appreciation of the friendly welcome which he had received at the time he returned he hoped to meet the members of the branches in more commodious quarters, it being the on of the proprietors to supersede present building by a more modern structure. Mr. Mackinnon was subsequently entertained at Scott's Hotel at dinner by the literary staff of Argus, Australasian, and Sketcher, Mr. Addison, editor of the Argus, presiding. The health of the guest was cordially drunk.

A new system of field service firing ring introduced by the new commandant, Major-General Malloch, was successfully carried out with three companies of rangers during the week. The targets consisted of small targets 2ft. squares placed at various distances, the men firing volleys by section. The ranges were picked up quickly, and shooting was the result.

The Central Board of Health has received reply to its inquiry as to the nature of the fever which attacked the Arrwata at Albany, from Messrs. Macleod stating that the disease is a type of continuous malaria.
